BOMBING NIPS WITH B-29s

The plan of continuously bombing Japan from Saipan promises to be one of the most important strategies of the war. But like all difficult innovations, it already has evolved some serious kinks which must be ironed out.

They include: crew fatigue, maintenance problems, weather conditions and home front production of planes to replace those lost in action. Upon these factors depend the frequency with which we can keep up the rain of bombs on Japan.

The bombing of Japan from Saipan represents a gruelling experience for the crews involved, and allowances must be made to provide necessary rest periods. If any of the crews participating in the Thanksgiving Day raid tried it again three days later, it would be only natural to expect that their operational ability would be proved reduced because of the wearing effect of the earlier 3,000-mile flight.

It has also been found that information on weather over Japan is still not entirely accurate.

But reconnaissance photos taken after the first two raids did show severe damage to a major aircraft plant outside of Tokyo, also effective shattering of several water front areas which are jampacked with Tokyo traffic.

Other Obstacles to Raids.

Officials have also learned that the B-29 still has certain defects which may require modification in future production. These primarily concern the safety of air crews and should be remedied before bombing of Japan can be carried out on a day-to-day basis.

Air corps officials still reiterate that the air phase of the war against Japan is nearing its climax, but admit that several more months will pass before the air drive can be really stepped up to its peak.

One major hope is that General MacArthur's forces will be able to secure several bases in the Philippines so that the B-29s can operate from there, thus smashing at the south of Japan almost at will. Because of the B-29s' vast size, it is almost impossible to conceal them under camouflage, with the result that Japanese planes still operating from scores of fields in the Philippines could bomb B-29s at will if they were based on Leyte now.

RUSSIA AND JAPAN

Now that Stalin has put the Japanese on notice for war, calling them an aggressor nation, another chapter regarding Jimmy Doolittle's raid on Tokyo can be told.

After dropping its bomb load on Tokyo, one of the planes developed a leak in its gas line. Aware that he could not make friendly Chinese territory, the pilot set his course for Soviet Siberia, figuring he might barely be able to reach dry land. Internment he figured, was better than execution. When the fuel gave out, he had no idea where he was, but landed on the best flat stretch he could find.

As the crew of the plane piled out, a column of tanks appeared over a nearby hill. The airmen climbed back into their plane and prepared to make a fight for it, but finally saw the Soviet red star on the leading tank and got out of the plane again.

The pilot walked forward to talk with the Soviet major who jumped out of the leading tank. Using English, gestures, and one or two words of Russian, the pilot tried to explain how he happened to be there.

Finally, the Russian officer stopped him. In fairly good English, he said: "Yes, we know all about the bombing of Tokyo. And we knew one plane was in trouble and might be heading this way. We came out to see if we could find you."

The bomber crew started to climb into the tanks when suddenly another column of tanks appeared from the opposite direction. A Jap officer came running toward the Russians, shouting, "This is Japanese territory. We demand the surrender of the Americans."

The Russian major immediately dug out his maps, insisting he was on Soviet soil. The argument raged in German for several minutes, until finally the Jap angrily stalked off, ordering his tanks to fire. This was answered by a volley from the Russian tanks, both aiming at the sky. The Russian tanks then drove on, leaving the airplane behind.

They had been going at a fast clip for about half an hour, when the Russian major turned to the American pilot and said:

"I now welcome you to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics."

The border had just been crossed.

CAPITAL CHAFF

¶ Mrs. Melvyn Douglas will soon be in congress, elected from California.

¶ The railway brotherhoods, whose 400,000 members are affiliated with neither the AFL nor the CIO, are burned up over the appointment of Thomas Cashen of the AFL switchmen's union to the War Mobilization and Reconversion board's labor panel. Although Cashen's AFL union is in the transportation field, the brotherhoods feel that one of their own members should have been appointed to the labor panel.

Rev. Lundblad Addresses Local Kiwanis Club

The Rev. L. A. Lundblad, pastor of the Emmanuel Lutheran church of San Jose in a Christmas talk to the Campbell Kiwanis club Tuesday stressed particularly home life at Christmas time, and the customs each individual home has developed to celebrate the occasion.

His message was that "Home Is What We Make It at Christmas Time," and to make Christmas day what it should be, it should be kept as a holy day.

In keeping with the day's theme the clubmen enjoyed singing Christmas carols as part of the program, during which Clarence Nelson presided.

Next week President Herbert Shadle will be chairman and the various committees will submit their year's report.

Sigma Sigma's Christmas Party

Toyon Lodge in Saratoga was the setting this year for the Sigma Sigma Christmas party and dinner. Tables were attractively decorated with red candles and toyon berries.

Following dinner, a brief business meeting was held, highlighted by the reading of a very interesting letter from Corp. Barbara Davis, a member of the group, now stationed in New Guinea.

After the meeting carols were sung, and Miss Hancie Naylor read the Christmas story from the Bible. Games were played, and Santa Claus arrived to distribute gifts. Entertainment for the evening was under the direction of Mrs. Roy Stoner.

Honored guest was Mrs. William Henley, wife of the Campbell grammar school principal.

Success of the party was due to Mrs. Walter Elkey ably assisted by Mrs. John Duncan, Mrs. Worthin Grattan, Mrs. Jack Murdock, Miss Zadie Rice, Mrs. David Ribble, and Mrs. John Pollard.

Fire Chief Issues Holiday Warning

Your traditional holiday may turn into disaster if the following rules are not observed:

1. Place your tree a safe distance from open fireplaces or open gas stoves; curtains or other hangings, wreaths or trimmings should also be kept away from open fires.

2. Don't use lacquer or wax on tree leaves or wreaths. Keep celluloid ornaments or other inflammable trimmings away from electric globes or open fires.

3. Do not use cheap electrical equipment and do not overload any single circuit.

4. Use safety measures about smoking. Do not burn wrappings, boxes, Christmas trees or decorations in open grates or fireplaces. Remove trees after the season is over—do not keep them in your basement or attic.

Respectfully, J. B. Scott,
Fire Chief

Rebekahs Met Tuesday Night

Ada Rebekah lodge convened Tuesday evening, Dec. 19, with Virginia Currie, Noble Grand, presiding during the business meeting. At the close of lodge the Fideles Theta Rho club put on an initiation for the lodge, which was enjoyed by all. Members and guests adjourned to the banquet room where Santa was waiting for the Thetas, after which delicious refreshments were served by Lillian Ohlen and her committee.

The next regular meeting will be on Jan. 2 when Edith Lear Gallup, district deputy president, will install the new officers. Committee for the evening will consist of Lottie Rice, Edith Morely, Ellen Arnold, Josephine Gray, Mollie Crowley, Edith Soutar, Clara Baldwin, Julius Bachman, Jack Murdock, Archie Brydon and Walter Silberbauer.

Woman's Club In Red Cross Work Here Monday

Mrs. C. P. Klassen directed the patriotic song and pledge of allegiance at the meeting of the Country Woman's club Monday Dec. 18, with Mrs. C. E. Hancock at the piano.

Following the business meeting, President Mrs. Carl Field turned the meeting over to the Red Cross work day committee, Mrs. Lloyd Selig and Mrs. G. W. Burrow. The members devote their time on these special days, making surgical dressings and sewing.

Besides aiding in the various projects of the community, the members, under the leadership of Chairman Mrs. Ralph H. Hyde, have engaged in preparing sandwiches and serving at the USO hut in San Jose once a month.

Special notice is given that the meeting of Jan. 8, 1945, has been changed to a Red Cross work day. Helping Mrs. E. L. Farnham will be Mesdames Roy Magnuson, Lavinia Grattan, and J. A. Forward.

Program for January 15 meeting will appear later.

E BOND SALES EXCEED QUOTA

Chairman G. E. Farley reports the Sixth War Loan bond sales as follows: E bonds quota, $63,225; sales, $71,393, an oversubscription of $8,-168. Total quota of $153,960 is still a little short but should be exceeded before the end of the month as sales are still being made.

Campbell high school students conducted the E bond solicitations and did a grand job.

"As chairman, I extend thanks not only to the students but to Principal James W. Dent, his office staff, and the high school teachers who assisted so materially," said Farley.

Joint Meeting of Campbell PTA's

A joint meeting of local PTA's was held Wednesday evening, Dec. 13, in the high school auditorium.

Mrs. Clarence Fagalde, high PTA president, welcomed the audience, and Mrs. C. P. Klassen brought greetings from the grammar school PTA. Principal James W. Dent introduced the program.

The a capella choir sang several selections, and the orchestra played a group of Christmas numbers. Both orchestra and choir were under the direction of Frank Triena.

A play, "The Star," was directed by Miss Diane Winnia and included a cast of 11 high school students whose portrayal of the characters was very well done.

Beautiful programs were designed by the art class under the direction of Miss Mary Lewis, and printed by the office machines class directed by Miss Beegle.

Johannesburg Missionary Writes Christmas Chapter

On February 27, Ruth wrote "February was the wettest February known for 35 years, and March seems to be following suit. It is a bit unfortunate that just before the rains came this whole place was dug ready to plant lawns and to fix the roads, so that we have waded back and forth up to the Clinic through a regular mud pie. I have given up trying to keep the Clinic floors clean, for the moment one steps into the building, all the good of cleaning is undone. Next week we hope to have the dedication service for this place and I wonder how we are going to manage it. We must have more favorable weather conditions and the road must be allowed to dry and grass to grow before we can fix dates for the great and final public opening. We have a couple of dozen men working here daily fixing things up, but unfortunately I don't have anything to do with most of them, for they are hired by a garden contractor who is doing the job. My part is to supply tea galore to the European overseers!

And speaking of tea, just read this: "Enclosed please find a cheque from my father and myself, in payment for the tea you so kindly provided us with yesterday." And in the envelope was a cheque for One Hundred Pounds! For the Clinic! I really had to rub my eyes several times to believe them. This gentleman had come to tea very unexpectedly, bringing with him several ladies who were simply lovely and most interested. I never dreamed of any such thing coming out of that morning tea.

Ruth writes "On March 12, just two weeks ago, we had the dedication service for this place. This service was especially for the Township people, of whom there were great numbers present. Only members of the Board and a few other Europeans were invited. Among them was dear Mrs. Gray. Mrs. James Gray is over ninety years and the daughter of Rev. Josiah Tyler, one of the American Board's earliest pioneers. Dr. Taylor conducted the service most fittingly and gave a beautiful dedicatory prayer which gives us all much to live up to. I did want the people to feel that this place does represent ministry to the spirit as well as to the body and this dedication service emphasized that especially. Dr. Taylor gave his sermon in English, which was interpreted into Zulu and Sesutu. "I am coming to give life and this you may have more abundantly." He spoke of the Institution and the doctors and nurses who had come to give physical healings. "But," he said, "far greater is the need for spiritual healing. The object of this place is to give of the Spirit. If the Spirit is right, the aim and object are attained." He alluded to the beginning of the work and said the early visions had been wonderfully fulfilled. Another choir sang and then Judge Schreiner spoke. He began thus "I am not going to speak long. I have listened with great interest to the helpful words of Dr. Taylor and I trust you will all take to heart what he said of the spiritual side of the work. I remember the beginning. How it was the American Board Mission work, started by Miss Cowles and by Dr. and Mrs. Fred Bridgman and don't you ever forget that it has been the Mission spirit that has ever been prominent here. There are other hospitals and clinics for natives, but this one depends on the real Mission vision and the spirit of its founders. There are tributes to give to Miss Cowles and to those leaders who have worked here, far too great for mere words to express. I recall the first two-room wood and iron building, and realize that the visions of the founders have been to some extent carried out in this large substantial building today, but no one can estimate the spiritual work." Then the Judge exhorted all to be humble and to be grateful and thank God for the realization of a vision today. Dr. Taylor closed by saying that "every race and creed and sect was received here, and altho the American Board really started the work, it was Christ who was the leader, and not any one denomination. The Spirit of Christ is the one sought in every movement." At about a quarter of five the service was closed with the benediction and the African National Anthem was sung most heartily by every one near and far.

Farewell services were held this morning from the Roger Darling chapel, with interment in Oak Hill Memorial park.

Floyd Golladay Killed In France

The mother of Floyd W. Golladay has received word that he was killed in France on Oct. 29.

Golladay was born in 1924 and came to Campbell with the family in 1930 where he attended grammar school, and later the Edison high school in San Jose. He then had six months training in the conservation corps and was sent overseas in an unattached unit. He was in Italy and on the beachhead at Marseille.

As yet his mother does not know just where or how his death occurred as he was not in a combat unit.

Floyd has three brothers: Gilbert, who has a medical discharge from the army, Cpl. Richard, stationed in Seattle, and Leland, attending a private school.

Community Council Meets

A called meeting of the Community Council was held Monday night to hear the final report of the Community and War Chest drive and allocation of funds according to the budget set in August.

The total amount pledged was $7,022.48, as announced by secretary-treasurer Ethan E. Lanphear.

President Eliza Jeffers stated that Mrs. Francis Cousins has been appointed as treasurer of the Relief fund of the budget, from which money is furnished for emergency needs, and for meals or milk at school for underprivileged children.

The next regular meeting of the Council when officers are elected will be in May, but special called meetings may be held if occasion arises.

Mrs. Ballard McCurrle received word from the war department Friday that her husband, Ballard, was killed in action in France in November. Ballard, well known and liked here, was the father of five children.

CHRISTMAS 1944

The magic of the Christmas season is with us once again —the odor of Christmas trees, the glint of tinsel, the gleam of colored lights, the bubbling laughter of children anticipating the arrival of Kris Kringle, the fairyland of toys in store windows, the ageless carols which tell the story of the Christ child.

Even in the midst of a great war the Christmas spirit glows across the world, annihilating space and bringing a renewed unity and affection between loved ones long separated because of the war.

Christmas warms the heart as surely as the crackling fire on the hearth warms the body. The troubles of the world fade somewhat as men pause to contemplate its true meaning.

Christmas might be likened to a buoyant presence which lifts life above its sordid and sorrowful phases. Actually, this presence can be felt not only at this season but all through the year by those who live the Golden Rule and heed the simple but profound teachings of the Nazarene.

We celebrate thisChristmas with bright hopes for the future. We are able to celebrate it here in America in the warmth and security of our homes because our sons and brothers and husbands have turned back the foes that would have devasted our lands, destroyed our hopes and put the world in chains.

Spurred by their love of justice and freedom—the very essence of the Christmas spirit—they are carrying the battle to the forces of darkness.

When that battle has been won, all the world will again echo the joyous cry which the shepherds heard on that Holy Night, "Peace on earth, good will toward men."

A "COMPROMISE PEACE"

One man has stepped forward to tell exactly when the war in the Pacific will end and what will end it.

Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher, commander of the history-making Task Force 58, told San Diego newsmen recently that the Japanese war machine will not begin to crumble until after Germany acknowledges defeat. And the duration of the conflict, he said, "depends entirely on the home front"—the quantity and caliber of both supplies and the morale it can produce between now and V-day.

The ability of the Army, Navy, Marines and Coast Guard to fight and die and win eventual victory is unquestioned, declared the Admiral. But the time it takes—and the lives—are matters completely in the hands of the home front.

That responsibility is perhaps the greatest that ever rested on a people. The hopes, the lives, the future, of millions throughout the world—indeed the course of the world itself for generations to come—depend on how we measure up. Yet, when that obligation is fulfilled and finished, another even greater responsibility looms.

When Germany falls, Admiral Mitscher and other military men believe, Japan will sue almost immediately for a "compromise peace"—for a peace that will secure its future for another war. The Japanese plans already prepared and waiting for the propitious moment when a bland and smiling envoy will hand them to our representatives, are designed for one purpose alone—to save Jap industry both at home and on the Asiatic mainland from obliteration.

From both humanitarian and international economic standpoints, the Jap peace proposals will look more or less feasible to many of us. But they will have nothing in common with either humanity or better world economics. They will be plans for future war! Such is the conviction in military and other qualified quarters.

It will be our great responsibility to permit no such conciliations. It is our job at home to let our military, diplomatic and government leaders know that if tough terms are necessary to keep Japan in line, then let them be tough. Japan must learn that the world is through with bloody, aggressive war; its carefully disguised loopholes must be plugged and welded. This time there must be no compromise.

SUPER-SUPER PLANES

We thought the Flying Fortresses were huge. We consider the B-29's colossal. But we are told that we will have to find a new adjective to describe the long range bomber now being developed. It is reported to be the "largest plane that has ever been attempted in this country", and is known as the B-36. Two other new planes, the B-35 and the B-42 are being worked on, but it is not clear if they, too, will be bigger than the B-29. While plans for bigger planes went forward, American pilots were continuing to knock Hirohito's airships out of the sky at a rate greatly in our favor. Major Richard Bong raised his score to 40 by getting two more Jap planes. He has been awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor.

COME CLEAN!

You may have heard the story of the woman who cried when she got her laundry back—she was so happily surprised!

One does become a little worried when two, three or more weeks pass and the shirts, sheets and linen art still among the missing. But if you think you have been long suffering, consider the case of the Army officer.

In August 1943, when home on leave, he sent his laundry out. Now stationed in California he got it back just recently. Fifteen months!

Well, anyway, he got it.

POSTHUMOUS AWARDS

The Army has awarded posthumously the Distinguished Service Cross to four chaplains who gave their life jackets—and their lives—to save others aboard a troop transport sunk in 1943. When the ship was sinking, the four men handed out life belts until the supply was exhausted, then removed their own and gave them also. According to the Army, the chaplains calmed many of the soldiers who were virtually paralyzed with fear and are "given credit for saving men by persuading them to go overboard where there was a chance of rescue." The chaplains represented all three faiths—Protestant, Catholic and Jewish. The service and sacrifice of men such as these transcends mere denominational activity. They were not concerned with the religious beliefs of the men they helped to save. Long ago they had dedicated their lives to helping those in need. They did not falter in the crisis. Such unselfishness is a shining example of true religion and true Americanism.

CHRISTMAS IN BRITAIN

Christmas in Britain this year will be a bit more cheerful than it has been for the past five years. Christmas plum pudding, which in the war years has been made of a concoction of flour, carrots and apples plus a tiny sprinkling of fruit, will this year contain a few raisins and dates; and everyone will be allowed to buy an extra half pound of margarine, half pound of sugar and eleven cents worth of meat, which will bring the total allowance of meat for Christmas week up to 35 cents worth.

"Kiss and Tell" to Return to SF for Two More Weeks

George Abbott's cavalcade of laughs, "Kiss and Tell" with Lila Lee, Walter Gilbert and June Dayton in the feature roles, returns to San Francisco, playing at the Geary Theatre beginning December 25, for two weeks only.

Written by F. Hugh Herbert, staged and directed by Mr. Abbott, it is definitely the funniest show of many a season, an all-out, all-over, all-in-the-together-girls hit and in a world of woe, it shines like a gay, good deed.

The comedy, the company, the author and the producer have praise by critics and unanimous praise by critics and public alike where "Kiss and Tell" has appeared. This frolicsome piece has been delighting audiences in four separate parts of these United States and is still playing in New York at the Biltmore Theatre and in Chicago at the Harris. A London company opened in England recently.

David Conlin is seen as Lt. Archer; Gene Fuller appears as the earnest next-door-neighbor's boy, frequently in very hot water through no fault of his own, and David Garden plays the role of Raymond, whose 'know-it-all-ness' generally messes things up. The balance of the cast is excellent and includes Mary Keenan, Virginia Franke Davis, Kittie Cosgriff, Ellen Hall, Albert Vees, Larry Semon, William David, Irving Mitchell and Ernest Woodward.

This comedy is as much fun for Aunt Minnie, Aunt Susie, Bob or Mary, as it is fun for Pop and Mom, or their cousins; in fact every one 9 to 90 years young. Matinees the first week of "Kiss and Tell" at the Geary will be held on Wednesday and Saturday. There will be two performances New Year's Eve., starting at 8:00 p.m. and 11:00 p.m. Final performance Saturday evening, January 6.

David Curry of 214 W. Campbell avenue, a former student of C.U.H.S. received his commission as an Ensign USNR on Saturday, December 16, having completed the course in engineering at the California Maritime academy at Vallejo.
